A TOWER

(VERSE 1)
A tower far above the sand, verdant and lush
piled with stone and brush, refuge of hope, nod to nature's grand

(VERSE 2)
A tower far above the piers, speckled and granite hardened with golden tears echoes our fears

(CHORUS)
Dusk Watch sees morning past noon –
The Sun, awakening east, 'till half a day gone too soon,
You son, have paid a soldier's debt,
In our hearts deep with gloom - we'll never forget

(VERSE 3)
A tower far above the sea, beacon of beauty but bracing defiance of unity
the ugly lie barren in anonymity.

(VERSE 4)
A tower greater than our ideas
'cause we only see what's in front of us town's ok with mediocrity
As long as it doesn't throw us under the bus.

(BRIDGE)

A tower far above the horizon, blissful and serene, that place in our dreams We'd like to meet the Host, but reluctant to achieve populated with heroes and saints/the ones we'll miss the most

(CHORUS)

Midday Watch sees noon to midnight –
The Sun, setting in the West, 'till half a day gone now to rest.
You son, have paid a soldier's debt,
In our hearts deep with gloom – we'll never forget

(OUTRO)

Ride high in your saddle, never bending to fear

– Soldier on for all we hold dear
Rest easy hero, we'll hold the watch tower from here
